Elk Point 4-H Grand Champion steer

Tulsen Wells accepts the Grand Champion ribbon and the Elk Point Co-op trophy from Heather Tymko and Kevin Wirsta for his first-year 4-H Beef project steer, while judges Heather and John Barr add their congratulations. The 2013 Reserve Champion Steer was shown by Kailey Wirsta and the Grand and Reserve Champion Females by Heidi and Roy Tymko. More photos, Pages 6-7.

First-year 4-H member Tulsen Wells proudly accepted the Elk Point Co-op Grand Champion trophy for his big red steer, Scruffy, on Saturday afternoon at the C. G. Baker Arena, as the Elk Point 4-H Beef Club held its first achievement day since last year's move from the Multi Club. Junior member Kailey Wirsta showed the Reserve Champion, a big black steer named Mojo, to win the Prairie Tech Oilfield Services trophy.

The Wells and Wirsta steers were chosen in the preliminary rounds of judging in the weight divisions, with Roy Tymko and Heidi Tymko from the lighter class and Payden Wells and Matthew McNally from the heavier class also bringing their steers into the parade of champions.

"You've done an excellent job of showing off yourselves and your product," judge John Barr told the youths. "It's all about salesmanship and promotion," he added. "All six steers are very similar in type."

"Your calves are phenomenal," added his wife Heather, who shared the day's judging duties.

Tulsen's steer also placed second in the Rate of Gain class gaining 3.08 pounds per day, but the big winner was Dustin Pinder, whose steer gained an admirable 3.38 pounds per day.

Heinsburg celebrates the Class of 2013

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Heinsburg Community School celebrated the achievements of the Class of 2013 on Friday, May 17, with an enthusiastic crowd of families and friends on hand for the farewell ceremonies.

Cambria BigSky, Daryle Fisher, Benette Moyah, Reena Moyah, Brittney Pashulka and Brett Waskahat took their places on the stage, each introduced by mistress of ceremonies Marie Zayac, who told the graduates their success is "a wonderful example of what you can do when you keep trying. It's something to be proud of."

Daryle Fisher asked blessings on the class and the occasion with a Cree prayer before Brittany Pashulka followed Heinsburg's long-standing tradition of passing the school colours to Grade 11 student Erin Jackson.

Pashulka also expressed thanks to the parents, who, she said, had shed tears on these students' first day of school, "and you are still here, shedding tears. It's not that long since that first day, our first step into the real world... where not everyone wanted to share their crayons." As the students learned "many life lessons, you were always there for us, you made us learn from our mistakes, and you are here again wishing us the best as we step out into the adult world."

"We are so proud of what you have become," Christine Graham replied on behalf of the parents. "It seems like yesterday, but you are no longer the babies we once held. Dream, believe in yourselves and you will soon go to amazing heights. But remember, wherever the road you travel, that it will lead you back home."

Heinsburg Farewell

Cambria BigSky thanked the Frog Lake Band and Board of Education, noting, "We are grateful to all who helped us on our way with positive thoughts and encouragement from the time we learned our ABCs and 123s."

Brett Waskahat said the Heinsburg Community School staff "are not just our teachers, you are our friends, one of the greatest friendships I've ever had.

You've gone above and beyond being our teachers."

Marjorie Scott presented gifts from Heinsburg Community Club and was "very pleased to welcome you all into the world of grown ups. Don't ever forget you came from Heinsburg."

Teacher Keith Dawson was joined by Melvin Abraham on guitar for the first of two vocal solos, this one giving the advice to "Be A Simple Kind of Man."

Benette 'Benny' Moyah gave the Class of '13 address, and said he was just back from Edmonton, where he took part in the Skills Canada provincial competition in carpentry, where he "didn't get an award," but came close, "and I got to keep my project," a tangible reminder of his skill. "It's a long journey to Grade 12, and we're almost finished now," he noted, thanking teachers, friends, classmates and family. He has been in the RAP Program since the beginning of the year, and is doing carpentry with his uncle in Frog Lake. "I'm thinking about becoming a carpenter, but I'm doing my apprenticeship in mechanics. . Ever since I was in kindergarten I've thought about what I would be when I grew up."

Darrell Younghans brought greetings from St. Paul Education Regional Division No. 1, and thanked the parents "for making this your school of choice. This is the 17th graduation at which I have spoken in Heinsburg. The first time was 30-some years ago as valedictorian; four times I spoke as school council president, and since then as board trustee. This will be my last. I have decided not to run again."

Younghans urged the Class of '13 to "Always be proud to say you're from Heinsburg. Live for today, chat with your friends, and smile. Dream for tomorrow. No matter how foolish or far out your dreams are, they're not crazy. Dream big and go for it."

Younghans congratulated Troy Runzer on his appointment as principal beginning in September, and offered best wishes to current principal Rob MacDonald in his future.

"Look at all these people," Lynn Stanley, Frog Lake Director of Education told the graduands. "They're all here to share your achievements and accomplishments. They are people who think the world of you, who believe in you.. They will always be there for you, because you are special."

Melvin Abraham performed a very special part of the program, presenting eagle feathers as a symbol of their accomplishment. "Eagle feathers are not just for anybody, they have to be earned. A lot of feathers have to be earned to make a traditional dancer's bustle." He spoke of eagles "soaring higher and higher, the next thing, we don't see them... they live in the heavens with Grandfather the Creator who protects us from harm. When you get an eagle feather, take care of it and it will take care of you. Take them with you, have a container for them. Someday, you may wear them in your dance regalia." He presented feathers from the Chief and Council to Benny, Reena, Cambria and Brett, feathers from his own regalia to Brittney and to his daughter Daryle, feathers "presented to me by the chiefs, a great tribute to pass on."

Twenty-three years after graduating from Heinsburg, Jason Quinney came back as guest speaker. "I graduated here, and I'm proud to say that. To be here to celebrate with you guys is huge. Success - that's where you're going. You've already gotten this far, and you're ready for the world. I can vouch for it. I don't even know you and I'm proud of you."

Quinney graduated in 1990, and "married my life partner, Nina, in 1994." The couple has two daughters. In 2005 he became the manager of Fountain Tire in St. Paul, and in 2007, the owner of that business.

"When I graduated here, I also got an eagle feather. I still have it and I'm still a Frog Lake Band member. Keep that feather for your strength. You'll need it. If you can get up from the struggle, if you can face stress, you can succeed. I hope you're all going on to post-secondary education, that's the next step, however long it takes you to get there. Don't give up. You're young, and you've got a chance.. I challenge you to do well. I'm exactly where I wanted to be, and until you get there, you won't be happy."

Principal Rob MacDonald was unable to be there in person, but sent a video message. "It's hard to be away, but it's worth it if it makes me able to get back by the end of the year. Tonight's a big night, when you're being acknowledged for your years of work. Think back to kindergarten, or even earlier, when you were read stories or handed a crayon, that's when you started learning. Think of the children who started this journey with you. You are here; you made it, despite bumps in the road for every one of you. Despite the pitfalls, you made it here, and you deserve a special night.

"The rest of your life starts tomorrow. There will be lots of little victories and challenges. Some will end the year short of credits. I hope you stick it out and finish what you started. The future is yours, it's up to you."

MacDonald noted that this is "my only grad class at HCS, net year I will be principal at Elk Point Elementary. I am proud to have known you, and blessed to share my time here with you."

Acting Principal Runzer presented scrolls and gifts before the ceremonies drew to a close, with escorts and parents joining the Class of 2013 in the triumphant Grand March.

- When you eat a meal, it takes about 4 hours for the food to move into the large intestine. Some people say that some foods give them gas. This gas is formed in the large intestine so that the bowl of chili you had for lunch could be causing you gas at supper.
- Teen acne can be an embarrassing problem but it can be treated. Seeing the doctor may not be necessary at first. Gently washing the skin with mild soap and water and applying non-prescription lotions may be all that's needed. Products containing benzoyl peroxide can be effective. Our pharmacists can show you what's available. If home treatment doesn't work, see your doctor.
- As your pharmacist, we keep a record of all your medications and note any allergies or sensitivities you have had to certain drugs in the past. When you have an adverse reaction to a medication, let us know so we can record it. It helps us prevent any such reactions occurring in the future.
- We dispense medications in child-resistant containers. However, this doesn't mean they are child-proof. Keep all medications out of reach of children and try not to take medication in front of young children. If you have problems opening these safety-capped vials, let us know and we can give you another type.
- After meals? On an empty stomach? With water? Can I have a drink of alcohol with this medication? How long should I take it? These are some of the many questions you should know the answer to before you leave the pharmacy. Our pharmacists will make sure you know these answers.

EDITORIAL

End of an era

This issue marks the final week that we will share this page with FCSS Director Deanna Easthope. We have enjoyed sharing her comments and insights for many years and have considered her part of our news team. She will be very much missed.

Who will fill the 'Guest Column' space in future weeks? That is a question that you'll just have to wait to find out.

Way Back When...

Participation, prayers, paddles

HERE'S THE NEWS THAT MADE THE HEADLINES OF THE LAKELAND REVIEW AND ELK POINT REVIEW FOR THE WEEK OF MAY 28 IN...

1988

A schoolyard full of dancers did their aerobic stint, Heritage Lodge seniors flapped their way through the Bird Dance, line dancers kept rhythm on the centre of Main Street and brave balloon tossers held a water fight, all in the name of Participation on Sweat'n'Sneaker Day. Heinsburg Community School valedictorian Kim Thomson urged her classmates to hang on to their dreams as the Class of 1988 graduated, with guest speaker Bob Hendriks finished his address by singing "Till We Meet Again."

1993

Class presidents with class, Callie Baumgardner and Denis Jasinsky, valedictorian Suzanne Rae and class historians Brad Poiras and Tanya Kenyon all took their turns in the spotlight at F. G. Miller's graduation, where exchange students Katharina Hettich and Esther Kraenkel spoke about their memorable experiences as part of the class. Frank Mayner received the federal Lescabot Award of Honour for his outstanding contribution to community cultural activities.

1998

2003

St. Paul District 4-H leader Allan Preston announced that achievement days and the interclub show and sale would go ahead as usual, despite the discovery of Mad Cow Disease in northwestern Alberta. With the seven-time-winning Tuu Times no longer in the running, a team known as WHG - and worse - took home the championship at the 17th annual Jan Frisby Memorial Slo-pitch tournament.

2008

Two pipers led a band of voyageurs carrying a 34-foot freighter canoe up Main Street as the David Thompson Bicentennial Brigade brought history to life at this stop on their 3,870 km voyage from Rocky Mountain House to eastern Canada. Elk Point Community Choir completed another rewarding year with their spring concert, which was dedicated to the memory of former choir members Jill Hartley and Gladys Haag.

GUEST COLUMN

The FCSS story

In the 1960s, Alberta was a prosperous province, the world was a changing and hopeful place, and within that setting occurred some remarkable social developments. During that period, Alberta's Department of Public Welfare underwent a significant change in personnel. A new wave of individuals entered the Department as all the senior staff retired.

Duncan W. Rogers was hired in 1959 as the Deputy Minister. Work on reforming Alberta's social programs began and continued through the 1960s. Several programs based on the philosophy of community development were started, among them the program now known as FCSS. The program, then called Preventive Social Services (PSS), was created by Duncan Rogers and John Smith (who would become the first Director of the provincial program).

The PSS program was intended by politicians to deal with increasing social problems from the perspective of prevention. Specifically, the program was developed to prevent dependence on public welfare by promoting individual independence from the state. Aspects of the program that were the most politically saleable were: the encouragement of independence from the welfare state; the prevention of problems that result in dependency; the encouragement of the work ethic; the return to the work force of those on social assistance; and the reduction of problems within families.

The Preventive Social Services Act came into effect on July 1, 1966. On that date, cost-sharing began for approved programs. The Regulations under the Act defined prevention as "designed to enhance individual and family life, and to preclude breakdown of dependency upon public funds". Some examples of acceptable preventive programs for which PSS funds could be used were included in the Regulations.

My first experience with PSS was in January of 1971. Having recently completed my B.Sc. degree with a major in social work and a minor in child and family relations from Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah, I was hired by Red Deer and District PSS as a PSS worker, specifically assigned to work with youth. At that time, the PSS program in Red Deer had a director, two staff and a part time secretary. My position had the challenge to develop something that would prevent breakdown with youth and families. After working in Red Deer for four and a half years I was then hired by the Town of St. Paul as the PSS

deanna

from the FCSS desk

Director in September 1975. At that time, I was the only PSS staff and I had access to a secretary part time that I shared with the Recreation Department. In 1979, I retired from PSS in St. Paul to become a stay-at-home Mom.

In 1980, an assigned MLA Committee conducted the PSS Review. Changes resulted. In 1981, the Preventive Social Services was changed to Family and Community Support Services. Reviews seemed to become a user-friendly word because in 1989, Premier Getty recommended a thorough study and evaluation of current programs for the family. More changes occurred.

When did PSS/FCSS start in Elk Point? In 1974, Elk Point entered an agreement with the Province to become involved. Many changes have occurred over the years in Elk Point. In January 1990 the Town amalgamated FCSS and Recreation. A few years later this was dissolved back to FCSS. However, instead of being full time as when it was under PSS, the program is now part-time under FCSS. The financial contribution from the Province was "grandfathered," thus making the 80 per cent-20 per cent provincial-municipal ratio the same for many years. I became Elk Point's part-time FCSS Director in March of 1996 and I have seen changes. But most of all, I have always believed in the purpose and foundation of the program. It involves the individual, the family and the community - the foundation of society.

Over the years I have had the opportunity to write my thoughts about any topic within the framework of FCSS for the Elk Point Review "from the F.C.S.S. desk..." I have enjoyed this opportunity and would like to thank the Elk Point Review, the St. Paul Journal and all the readers of these articles that I wrote.

History unveiled at Forts

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

With the mighty North Saskatchewan River for a backdrop and fascinated listeners before her, Winnipeg historian and author Barbara Huck unveiled her latest book, 'Kisiskatchewan: The Great River Road', at Fort George and Buckingham House Interpretive Centre on Saturday.

No more appropriate venue could have been chosen at this point along the river which was once the highway of the fur trade, because the book's cover art echoes the scenery stretching out to the southwest of the Elk Point area historic site, and the story is that of William Tomison, Governor Inland of the Hudson's Bay Company, who built Buckingham House here in 1792.

"This is a fabulous place to do the reading," Huck said. "When I think of William Tomison, I think of here and of the school built in his Orkney Islands home town with his endowment."

Huck called Tomison "one of Canada's unknown heroes," largely forgotten "except for his name on a plaque in the Hudson's Bay store in Edmonton" despite his "unceasing toil for 51 years in Canada's old North West."

Tomison arrived on the western shores of Hudson's Bay in 1760 at the age of 21 and worked his way up in the company to become the only Orknian to become Governor Inland, creating a string of trading posts along the North Saskatchewan and steering a young David Thompson toward the training in surveying that enabled him to carry out his extensive explorations of the Canadian west.

After many years, Tomison returned to South Ronaldsay in the Orkneys and turned his focus to educating generations yet to come, and when he died, without a wife or other heirs, bequeathed his estate to the operation of a school there.

Huck said her book is based on "the journals, written in elegant script" by Tomison, "the first real western Canadian." His journals are kept in the Hudson's Bay Archives in Winnipeg, and with further research, she says she "went beyond the journals" in creating her tale of this major player in the fur trade.

Huck had her listeners on the edge of their seats as she read from the book's first chapter following eight-year-old Native, Red Sky, as he sees his father coming across the river on snowshoes after a long trip in search of buffalo for his starving people, and Musqua, the mighty grizzly, coming down the edge of the river toward a huge snare the boy has crafted. All were left in suspense as to whether the bear would be snared before it could attack, and were urged to read the book to determine the outcome.

Her second reading introduced Tomison, as he learned that the fate of others in the west was even worse than that of those in his own short-rationed fort, with few of the Native people still alive after a smallpox epidemic.

Finally, Huck read from a chapter close to local hearts, where Peter Fidler looks over the site "the old man" (Tomison) has chosen for Buckingham House, finding it to have a stunning view and plenty of building wood, as well as a good place to keep an eye on the North West Company's trading house, rising to the east, but with no source of water except the river far below. When asked by Tomison what he would do about that problem, Fidler promptly answered, "Dig a well, sir. Wherever there's water, sir."

Rain delay for Peewee Sox at provincial round robin

Thanks to all my good friends who sent condolences on the Leafs' loss two weeks ago. I was happy they made it to game seven, if fact it was like seventh heaven and would have been more than happy if they just lost instead of having a three goal lead, getting our hopes up and then blowing it. Anyway, as we say, "There's always next year!" Let's play ball!

The Peewee Sox certainly have improved since the first weekend in May. Playing Frog Lake this past Thursday in house league, they won the game 19 to 8. Great pitching by Graham Stuparyk and Angus McFarlane. Caleb MacKinnon smacking a big RBI double and some awesome base running by Hunter Nelson.

This past weekend the provincial team traveled to Sherwood Park on a miserable Saturday to play three provincial round robin games. Starting at noon, they played one and half innings against St. Albert before the game was suspended because of driving wind and rain, the score at the time was 4-all. It turned into a nightmare for the tournament committee who had to decide what to do. The weather at the time looked terrible but to send the team home was going to be the last option. In the end, the decision was that the St. Albert game would be finished the next day but the Sox still had to play another game that day and it was scheduled for three. Three hours later the team played its second game against the SJP Jays at four o'clock. The diamond was still a little greasy, the weather was less than ideal with the cold wind blowing, everyone was bitter cold and wet on the bench, but the rain had stopped by this time, it was the same for both teams and it was, game on! Brayden Fairbairn was looking great on the mound, chucking some heat for the Sox, he would go for his max pitch count of 80, Corbin "Crusher" Ockerman, Cody Fairbairn, "Taylor Made" Pankiw and Nick "Big Bird" Tucker all coming in of relief throwing 25 each, saving time for Sunday. The Sox losing this one by 10 runs in five innings. Dawson Haesch with a spectacular catch at second and a RBI single at the plate.

Sunday at noon the Sox played in one of the craziest games ever against the Edmonton Angels, the game tied after seven innings would go into an extra inning then still tied, had to be called after three hours. Baseball games are never supposed to end in a tie. That's like kissing your sister, but because the Sox still had another game to play and it was after three o'clock, the committee decided in this case to leave it as a tie. Nicholas "Big Bird" Tucker on the hill to start this one went two innings allowing only two earned runs, Cody Fairbairn threw one inning, allowing no runs, Dustyn "Dust Pan" Pankiw coming in the fourth, he would almost finish the game, allowing four runs in four innings before he was maxed out at 80 pitches, his sister "Taylor Made" Pankiw coming for the final out in the seventh and then pitching in the extra inning, she shut them down and the game remained tied. Maybe in this case Dustyn should kiss his sister! Huge run-saving catches in left field by Christian Castle Wassen, another one in center by "Crusher" and the nicest one of all, a diving catch at third base by the "Dust Pan"

Now we go back to the St. Albert game, which started the day before but would start again about 4 p.m. on Sunday, right after the Sox team had a quick snack at their tailgate barbecue thanks to Brant Evans who fired it up and started cooking much earlier. Cody Fairbairn getting the start, Kaiden "K Rock" Evans Anderson coming in on relief would go the maximum 80 pitches, then "Taylor Made" coming in to finish this one off as well. Newly sign this past week, St. Paul product Joe Laurier was a very welcome addition to the team, not only was he the catcher for this game, he hit two doubles and drove in four runs in this one, the Sox who had some momentum going, not getting their last at bat due to another time restraint, losing by a respectable four runs. But we can't really complain the committee did the best they could when you consider the circumstance with the weather. The Sox, who finished the May provincial round robins with one win, one tie and four losses will now be retired into division two north for the month of June.

And now for the K.A. Campbell quote of the week. "A hotdog at the ballpark is better than a steak at the Ritz." Last week's answer to: "What a blessing conveyed by these two words, base ball." - Philadelphia City Item, 1866. Have a sports scoop? Now you can email them to sportsound007@hotmail.com

History unveiled

Huck was accompanied on her visit by her husband, the Hon. Peter St. John, Ninth Earl of Orkney, who also had interesting insight to impart.

Many youngsters from the Orkneys came to Canada with the Hudson's Bay Company ships, sent by their parents because the alternative was the British Navy. The HBC found the Orknians to be good horsemen who "didn't answer back" and were willing to marry the Native women, St. John said. At one point, the HBC crew was 85 per cent Orknians, with names that became familiar in the fur trade: Flett, Spence, Clouston, Isbister and others.

The Orkney people's background is "Norse, not Scots, dating back to the Vikings," he said, and the Earldom started with the Norse. He joked that the originals were followed by a series of "unsatisfactory Scottish earls and a useless set of English earls" before he inherited the title in 1998. His grandfather had been a British ambassador who visited Scotland and stayed with the FitzMaurice family, who were related to the Sixth Earl, and which included a pretty daughter. He returned to marry her and they had six children, one of them his father. War and other calamities took their toll on the FitzMaurice family, and the Eighth Earl died without children, giving St. John the title.

St. John said that many of today's Orknians are now Métis, a fact he finds "very exciting," and two agreements have been signed between the province of Manitoba and the Orkney government. The Orknians are very much aware of their ties with Canada, especially after seeing a television documentary on Tomison and his life in the Canadian west. They will learn more about the adventures of their countryman when St. John and Huck introduce "Kisiskatchewan: The Great River Road" there in October.

Peter St. John, 9th Earl of Orkney, chats with MLA Shayne Saskiw.

4-H Multi Club Report

By WOLKE CUEVA

The Elk Point 4-H Multi Club started early on Saturday morning May the 4th with the annual high way cleanup of Moose Hills Road.

We had all of our club members present and some even brought much needed friends to help with the task at hand.

The morning was made even more enjoyable with the perfect weather. We could not have asked for a better day. We ended up filling a horse trailer full of garbage.

By 12:30 p.m. we were all done and packed it up and went for a Pizza lunch and spend some relaxing time at the Gibson family's place nearby.

Thank you to our friends that came to help and for everyone that slowed down during our cleanup. Also to the couple that "helped" themselves to our bottles collected and left for pickup on the side of the road. We forgive you.
